

THE DOTHAN EAGLE

VOLUME 1.

DOTHAN, ALABAMA, SATURDAY EVENING, SEPTEMBER 6TH, 1909.

NUMBER 298

ARMER KILLS GIRL AND WOUNDS WIFE.

Grady, Sept. 3.—(Special).—Laddened because his wife from whom he had been separated for a short time, refused to live with him again or to give him a home on her little farm, a few miles south of Grady, across the Crenshaw county line, William Stevenson made a murderous attack on the woman and his step daughter Gertrude Vann, shortly after 7 o'clock yesterday morning. He attacked the woman with a double-barreled shot gun, killed the girl almost instantly and wounded his wife so that she may not recover.

The girl was shot through the stomach and received the entire contents of one barrel of the gun. She died without regaining consciousness. Mrs. Stevenson was shot in the left arm and the heavy charge of shot tore her hand completely from the arm.

Following the completion of his fiendish crime, Stevenson fled from the house. The neighbors were soon aroused and posse led by deputy sheriffs from Montgomery and Crenshaw Counties searched the surrounding country for hours.

Fearing that his neighbors would lynch him if he was found in the vicinity of his crime, Stevenson made his way into Pike county. He stopped at a number of places and learned in some manner that a posse was hurrying after him. Near Troy he asked at a farm the road to Troy and said that he would give $500 to any one who would see him safe to that place.

"I'll give anyone $500 who will see me safe in Troy," he told the farmer with whom he talked. "I'll be dead if I want to be butchered," he said.

This aroused the suspicions of the farmer and he telephoned Sheriff Carroll of Pike county that a man carrying a gun wanted to get to Troy. The sheriff recognized Stevenson from the description given him and started after him.

A mile from Troy he found his man and covered him with a rifle. Stevenson saw that escape was impossible and fearing for his life surrendered. He was taken to Troy and lodged in the jail.

It was stated last night that though Mrs. Stevenson had lost much blood and was in a greatly weakened condition, it is believed that she will recover.

According to the story brought to Montgomery by Deputy Sheriffs Haynes and Reeves, the attack was entirely unexpected. Mrs. Stevenson, her daughter and her son, Grover Vann, arose as usual yesterday morning. Following breakfast, Vann, who is about 18 years old, left the house to go to the fields for some holler. After working a short time in the field he heard two reports of a gun. Hurrying to the house he found that his sister and mother had been shot.

The girl was lying on the floor of the kitchen with a ghastly wound in her side and his mother was lying near the girl with blood spouting from the arteries of a severed arm.

According to the story of the crime told at Grady, Stevenson has been hanging around the neighborhood for several days. Thursday night, it is said, he stole the shot gun he used from the home of L. D. Duke, a farmer living some distance from the Stevenson farm.

During the night it is believed, Stevenson made his way across the country to his wife's farm and hid in ambush near the house until daylight.

Familiar with the customs of his family the man waited until he saw his step-son leave the house and go to a field remote from the house. Then he crept to the back door of the house. He saw the women together and pointed the gun at them. The Vann girl came to the door and fell without warning, shot through the body. The report of the gun brought Mrs. Stevenson to the door and as she appeared, her husband fired again.

Believing that his son had proved fatal in both cases, Stevenson fled without making sure that both women were killed.

He hurried from the farm and walked for two hours in a southerly direction. At 9 o'clock he stopped at the home of Lou Pruitt, a colored woman, who gave him some breakfast. This woman told the deputies trailing the fleeing slayer that he had been at her home and at Fairview, a short distance farther on, his trail was picked up.

Mrs. Emma Stevenson is a daughter of J. R. McLendon, one of the most prominent farmers of Montgomery county. She was first married to Frank Vann, who was the father of the murdered girl. Ten years ago Frank Vann was shot and killed. Mr. McLendon and Mrs. Stevenson then Mrs. Vann, were indicted for the murder and tried in the Montgomery courts. Both were acquitted. Later the woman married Stevenson.

Gertrude Vann, the victim of her step-father, returned to her mother's home but a few days ago. For some months she had been a student at a business college in Montgomery.

SCHOOL OPENS MONDAY.

All of the school children have returned from their vacation trips, the teachers have arrived and school will begin Monday, Sept. 6th, on time.

There are new teachers, this year who will make new friends and there are some who have been here before, some as many as three and four years, who have many friends to welcome them back to our little city.

This is expected to be one of the best school years in the history of Dothan, as a number of new branches have been added and everyone is going to work with more vim and interest. Already a great number of applications for entrance have been sent in and more are expected by the opening day. There will be no doubt, a larger attendance than ever before.

Miss Ida Mae Harmon of Troy, who has been the guest of Mrs. C. E. Harmon for some time, left today for her home.

Mr. J. W. Tipton, who has been employed as bookkeeper for the Dothan Guano Co., for some time, has resigned his position and is in the seed buying business.

A. B. Vickory returned today from Troy.

Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Walker left today for Andalusia to visit a seriously sick relative of Mrs. Walker.

Mrs. O. Jones, who has been the guest of Mrs. J. D. Logue for a few days, left today for Hartford.

It Will Pay You

We have a few tan ankle strap sandals and oxford slippers worth $3.50 to $4 that you can buy for $2.50. Also have a few numbers in black slippers to sell about the same discount. Come and see for yourself and be convinced that these shoes are worth nearly double what you pay.

N. FOSTER O. P. GREEN DOTHAN, ALA.

If we don't believe what Dr. Cook says about it, we will let it go at that.

The Dothan City Schools promise to have a big opening Monday, bigger than it has ever been before.

The little boys and girls who have had the streets for three months will give them up after today.

Nothing official has been received from Dr. Cook, but his competitors in the line have about given it up to him.

When you see two or three gathered together, there will you also hear the constitutional amendment discussed in a most learned manner.

When a farmer goes to the banks and gets $62 and $63 for a bale of cotton he acts like it was nothing new to him, and handles the money as if he was accustomed to wadding up twenties and tens every day in the year. Good many of them are; a good many leave the money on deposit, which is a good idea. More of them have sold more cotton for 6 cents per pound than for 12 cents.

BUSINESS MEN WANT PEACE

Newspapers opposed to the adoption of the constitutional amendment placing prohibition in the organic law, insist with great vehemence that its adoption would not end the fight of the liquor forces for control of this state.

This naturally brings up the question, would the defeat of the amendment end the fight?

No one would be foolish enough to answer yes to this question.

Every man in Alabama knows perfectly well that the defeat of the prohibition amendment would be hailed by the liquor people as would not lose five minutes in opening a red hot fight for control of the next legislature.

Thus it is made perfectly clear that political peace in Alabama does not lie in the defeat of the constitutional amendment.

The defeat of the amendment would mean that for the next two years, or until the next legislature is selected, Alabama would be torn by a political battle of intense bitterness. It would also mean that if the liquor interests failed in the next election to secure a friendly majority in the legislature, the campaign would be carried on with renewed energy, and then Alabama would be in the midst of another political fight which would last for four years instead of two.

There is but one way to end the fight and restore political peace in Alabama. This is by adopting the constitutional amendment. With prohibition in the constitution, reflecting as it would, the sentiment of the people upon his subject, the liquor interests would recognize the hopelessness of securing a two-thirds majority in the forthcoming legislature friendly to them and they would drop the issue. They might renew the fight in time, but peace would be assured for a number of years at any rate.

The business men of Alabama are anxious to take advantage of the opportunities offered by the growing prosperity of the country, and not many of them are going to aid in bringing about a condition under which a fierce political campaign would be immediately opened and the state thrown into a condition of strife and turmoil for the next two years.

OBSERVATIONS OF A RAILROAD MAN AT CHURCH

(Revised Version)

The schedule proclaimed that the run began at 11 a. m. A good many of the would-be-passengers were in the Station, like well regulated travelers, before the leaving or starting time, having secured comfortable berths, checked their baggage and arranged their traveling paraphernalia for a pleasant journey, happily engaged in an exchange of the latest neighborhood gossip, so dear to the average human heart, that the buzz of incessant conversation resembled a hive of honey bees working overtime. Many and varied were the danger signals displayed in gigantic and elaborate top-pieces of head-dress, red predominating, exciting numerous and sundry comments from their Sister travelers and criticisms, anathemas and maledictions from the Male persuasion whose clear view of the Pilot-Engineer and track ahead was so seriously obstructed. Then came the belated passengers, those you come in contact with at every Station each day, rushing in at the last moment breathless from a late start and swinging on to the rear steps of the last car in imminent jeopardy of injury to life or limb, scrambling down the aisle and over the seats treading on the pet corns of those already seated and creating a superabundance of unnecessary noise and confusion. 11:09 A. M. the Inspector tries the "air" of the Pipe Organ and the musical assistants file in with pomp and majesty, their hair on straight and a grand stand play for the conventional preliminary touches but an utter disregard for time or schedule. In the meantime the anxious ones in the audience have grown impatient, the little folks squirm and fidget from prolonged inactivity, but the formalities being finally concluded according to a Modern Hoyle, the Auditor having collected the voluntary fares—and say right here, you would be surprised to note the number of free passes on this line. The Hepburn Bill and Anti-free-pass-Legislation is evidently an unheard of quantity. Blessed Road: The only one in existence not being hampered or harassed by any such legal proceedings, and all who thus may choose can by putting on a bold front ride without exhibiting ticket or pass. The much abused two-by-four-Editor of a country-cross-roads-patent-medicine-advertising-weekly may hob-nob with perfect impunity side by side with the Politician, the Prosperous Lawyer, the Wealthy Banker, the Rich Merchant, and the Commercial Capitalist with the full satisfaction that lending their presence is sufficient and goes as far toward defraying current operating expenses as the magnanimous Philanthropist, who after a tedious search through all his pockets resurrects a slick nickel and drops it in the collection plate with a lavish air of ostentatious publicity of "Well Done, Thou Good and Faithful, etc." and bows his head in devout rendition of the Pharisee's Prayer.

The Engineer at last gets the high ball and opens up for his run at 11:35, which is at least late enough to render necessary every exertion to reach the Terminus on schedule time. The late start has in no wise, apparently, influenced his temper as he starts off in an elegant manner with never a jerk or a jar, which denoted the Master hand at the Throttle, but evidently realizing the necessity, imposed by no fault of his own, of finishing as near on time as lies in his power he crowds every inch of pressure until he has them rolling along in a way that holds his Congregation spell-bound, only easing up to avoid and call attention to the snare, and pitfalls of sin along the line in the shape of soft track and slow orders, and danger signals displayed for the safe guidance of those who patronize this system, which is rock ballasted and well-maintained, surveyed and laid out by a Most Worthy Engineer who we are exhorted to emulate. Our Engineer pays close attention to all whistling boards and the care exercised in rounding sharp curves shows he is to the manner born and he brings us to the end of the run in a skillful way, conscious of having executed a record breaking run in a mysterious manner after a start handicapped by difficulties that can be and should be eliminated by the Official in charge. When these late-comers and tardy Assistants embark on the last voyage over the River Styx summoned by the blast of Gabriel's Trump, there will be no lagging and no excuses accepted, but a peremptory order to deliver the goods without equivocation. Get Busy. Start Right. On Time. Stay on time and note results. Don't inconvenience the many to oblige the few. RENO.

THERE'S A DIFFERENCE between the "bargain counter" shears and scissors and a high grade article. The former may be cheap in price because of poor material and convict labor, but are never satisfactory in the "long run."

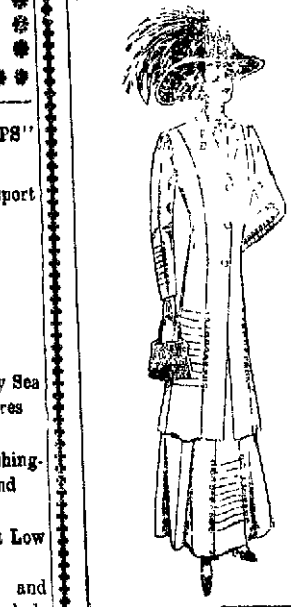

The latter is made from selected steel, properly tempered, forged and finished and every part inspected before it leaves the factory. Costs a little more to begin with, but is always a source of satisfaction to the user.

Clauss' make of shears and scissors are always reliable.

We Have Them In All Sizes And Styles.
